

LAUREN COOPER, MD, FAAD

center. She also serves on the professorial staff of Affiliated Dermatologists' renowned A.C.G.M.E.-accredited Fellowship in Micrographic Surgery and Dermatologic Oncology.

Dr. Cooper concentrates her practice on skin cancer screenings as well as facial rejuvenation. In addition, her colleagues at Affiliated Dermatologists offer a full-range of services including general dermatology, Mohs surgery, skin cancer screening, skin cancer excision, lasers, acid peels, UVB narrowband light treatments and much more.

"Having such a large medical staff has enabled me to limit my own practice to the detection and management of skin cancers and facial rejuvenation techniques such as Botox, Voluma, Juvederm, and modern, effective lasers for the treatment of red facial veins, brown spots, rosacea and sun damage."

"Whether I am discussing cosmetic options with my patients or educating them about skin cancer, I like to take my time and answer all their questions."

Many of Dr. Cooper's patients refer their family members and friends to her. "My cosmetic patients seek me out because they trust me to give them the natural-looking results they want." "I am a perfect match for patients in Morris County who value a more-subtle, rested, look and want to avoid looking 'overdone' with big lips and frozen foreheads."

Dr. Cooper takes great pride in her practice and has worked hard to help it grow from a one-office, four-doctor practice to the thriving, respected, multi-location practice of today. It is evident to anyone who meets Dr. Cooper that she enjoys what she does. "I love coming to work each day because I am able to help patients feel better psychologically, by helping them to achieve the cosmetic results they want at affordable costs as well as physically, by working together to prevent and manage skin cancer."

LAUREN COOPER, MD, is a Board-certified dermatologist who has been awarded numerous professional honors over the course of her career. These awards include New Jersey Monthly Magazine's "Top Docs in New Jersey", Castle Connolly's "Top Doctors in the New York Metro Area", The New York Times' and Inside New Jersey Magazine's "Top Cosmetic Doctors", as well as Castle Connolly's "Exceptional Women in Medicine".

After earning her medical degree from the New York University School of Medicine, Dr. Cooper completed her dermatology residency at the prestigious Skin and Cancer Unit at NYU Medical Center. After residency, she joined the medical staff of Affiliated Dermatologists and Dermatologic Surgeons, P.A.

Serving as President and Medical Director of Affiliated Dermatologists, Dr. Cooper manages all operations of the thriving practice which includes nine physicians, three physician assistants and four nurse practitioners with office locations in Morristown, Mt. Arlington, Bridgewater and Liberty Corner, as well as a state-of-the-art ambulatory surgery
